WILL LEAVE HIM ALONE

Henry George Jr. is Assured That He May Visit Cripple Creek Safely.

WILL NOT BE ARRESTED

General Bell Repudiates Statement That George Would Not Be Tolerated.

Victor, Col., June 15.—Reports have reached the district that Henry W. George, Jr., would come here for the purpose of looking into the labor difficulties and that the intention was to immediately arrest him. This report gained such headway that General Bell decided to issue the following order, which he personally sent to Mr. George, who is now in Denver:

"It having come to the knowledge of the military commander that Henry George, Jr., of New York is contemplating a visit to the greatest gold mining district in all the world, Cripple Creek, for the purpose of thoroughly investigating conditions, and the report being in circulation throughout the country that he would be arrested, it is hereby ordered that said Henry George, Jr., who is a law-abiding American citizen who has the good of this country at heart at all times, shall be treated as an honored guest by officers and enlisted men in the national guard of Colorado, and the 40,000 loyal law-abiding citizens of Teller county, Colorado.

"Assuring him of every courtesy and attention under military jurisdiction with very possible convenience and protection as long as he may care to remain in our district as a citizen of the United States with the advance guarantee and assurance that 'Colorado is in America today.'

"SHERMAN BELL, Brig.-Gen. Adjutant General, State of Colorado."

FROM LINCOLN TO ROOSEVELT.

That custom, despite the strenuous trend of the time, is not dead in the United States is proven by one of the collection of tales out of school just published by Captain Pendel, chief doorkeeper and usher, and oldest employe of the white house. He cites a singular coincidence in which all the ten presidents whose habits he knew so well were of one mind. This is a story of the one thing besides soap and water which all the presidents used in common. It was a little thing—but it is just such trifles that impress upon us the fact that great men are but human. It was a toilet article. There have always been many rivals of this particular article, but, curiously enough, all the presidents from Lincoln to Roosevelt have had an identical idea concerning the brand of their choice. The presidents of thirty years ago and their successors used it, as did all persons of refinement in their time. Reference is made to Dr. Lyon's Perfect Tooth Powder. Today, as though the habit were presidentially inherited, one of the familiar blue enamel boxes containing the powder stands beside every toothbrush in the bedchambers of the Roosevelt family. As the package is metal it will not break, and as it has a patent telescopic measuring tube it is always corked, and is, therefore, a convenience in toilet bags of travelers as well as a luxury in the boudoirs of stay-at-homes. General Grant carried it with him on his tour around the world.

NEED MORE MEN.

Washington Farmers Need Hands to Harvest Wheat Crop.
 Portland, June 15.—"Conditions were never more promising of a good wheat crop in eastern Washington than at present," said S. B. Calderhead, general freight and passenger agents of the Washington & Columbia River railway, who is visiting Portland today, having come down from Walla Walla last night.

It has been sufficiently moist to keep the grain making splendid growth and without being too dry at any time. The fall-sown wheat is heading and in some places pretty well along, while the spring-sown wheat is just beginning to boot. People generally do not seem to understand that in eastern Washington the same variety of grain is used for either spring or fall seeding, and the only difference being in the time of ripening, though heavier yield is obtained from the fall planting as a rule, but it is not always possible for farmers to put in as large an acreage in the fall as is desired, so the additional acreage is drilled in the spring.

"There has been some difficulty in obtaining harvest hands in former years, but I do not anticipate there will be much trouble this year, as the farmers have been reducing the necessity for help by employment of combined machines whereby five men can do as much work as was formerly accomplished by many more. The combined machines require a few more horses, perhaps, but horses can be bought or hired when men cannot, and the past few years have wrought great changes in the methods of handling the wheat crop of the country.

"Usually about 34 horses are used on a combined harvester, and six are kept for relays, in order to not work any of them too long at a time without rest, food and water. For the ordinary header it requires six horses, and it takes three of these to keep a thresher busy; then three wagons are necessary to handle the grain from the field to the machine or stack, so that about as many horses are used, and more men, to do the same work.

"Fall-sown wheat will yield 40 or 45 bushels to the acre, and that planted in the spring will run from 18 to 25 bushels, making the average yield not far from 30 bushels per acre. The harvest will come perhaps ten days earlier than ordinarily, and I expect that the hum of the machines will be heard as early as June 25. Then it will continue intermittently until October, when the last of the spring-sown grain will be cut.

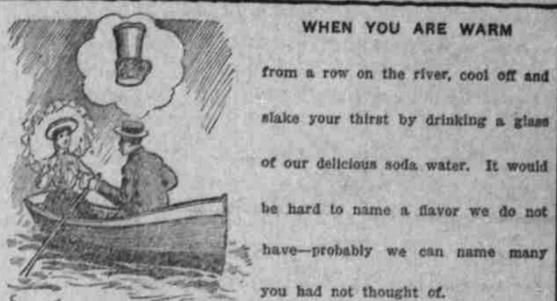

"What is needed most in that country is people. There are too many large ranches that should be cut up into smaller tracts. Where a man owns 3000 or 5000 acres of wheat, it is not tilled for the highest possible production, as in the case of the man whose holdings may be one-tenth or one-twentieth as great. Profitable fruit and vegetable crops become mere by-products, and instead of trying to grow them in the best possible manner, the big owner is more likely to devote his entire attention to wheat. More people mean a correspondingly greater consumption of manufactured articles, food products and machinery, all of which is conducive to the building up of business and making a community better commercially and socially."
